

Secretary of the Air Force, U.S.A. Visited Japan

On January 31st, the Honorable Heather Wilson, Secretary of the Air Force, the United States of America, made a visit to the Ministry of Defense, and had a bilateral meeting with General Marumo, Chief of Staff, Koku-Jieitai.

This was the first meeting in person with the U.S. distinguished visitor after General Marumo assumed his post. General Marumo and Secretary Wilson exchanged their views on a wide range of topics, such as regional situations, defense capability build up and defense cooperation, and deepened mutual understanding. Moreover, General Marumo and Secretary Wilson confirmed that they would enhance the interoperable air forces for the maintenance of peace and stability in the region.

Koku-Jieitai will continue to seek more opportunities to develop the relationship with the U.S. Air Force.
