

Capacity Building for Sri Lanka

On August 24 and 25, Koku-Jieitai (Japan Air Self-Defense Force) held an online seminar on air rescue with the Sri Lanka Air Force (SLAF) personnel as part of capacity building project for Sri Lanka.

In addition to sharing knowledge on various education and training related to air rescue, this seminar also included lectures and exhibition on air rescue procedures and training curriculum, contributing to the improvement of the safety and response capabilities of SLAF.

This program aims to uphold and enhance a "Free and Open Indo-Pacific" by helping SLAF develop its air rescue capabilities. The Koku-Jieitai actively contributes to the peace and stability of the region and the international community.
